Designer Amy Lau was delighted when asked to boldly incorporate her clients' favorite hues in their Manhattan home. "It ensured that color contributed to the design process as much as the architecture and the furnishings," she says. This culminates in the living room, where a coral Vladimir Kagan sofa is grouped with sky-blue and golden-yellow armchairs. The freeform table is by John Widdicomb, the vintage pendant is by Donzella, and Lau designed the rug with Fort Street Studio. Photo by Kim Sargent
